A FIRST WORD

In order to meet a wide general demand for such information as is contained in this Year Book, it was deemed advisable to furnish it for the bodies termed and considered religious bodies by the United States Census Bureau. Indeed, it is impossible to draw any further lines of demarcation other than the distinction which is made between those evangelical bodies which are federated in the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America and the other bodies not so included.

For fuller information regarding the Federal Council, its departments and commissions, its constituent bodies and their departments, boards and committees, reference should be made to the large amount of literature continuously published by the Federal Council, an up-to-date bibliography of which appears at the end of the book. Particularly valuable books in this connection are The Churches of the Federal Council and The Social Service Year Book, 1915.

The first Federal Council Year Book is not all its users will wish it to be, nor all its editor would make it. In the next number many things will be added, some things will be omitted, there will be a better arrangement of contents, and it will be issued at an earlier date. It is too much to hope that the first effort will be found without fault; but not too much to say that it is, at least, up to date. The valuable aid of two hundred correspondents is gratefully acknowledged.

FEDERAL COUNCIL YEAR BOOK

THE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF THE CHURCHES OF CHRIST IN AMERICA

HISTORICAL SKETCH

The Federal Council held its first meeting at Philadelphia in 1908 and was largely the culmination of previous voluntary federative movements, the chief of which had been the Evangelical Alliance and the National Federation of Churches and Christian Workers. The important preliminary work leading up to the organization was accomplished by the Interchurch Conference on Federation held in Carnegie Hall, New York City, in 1905, a body composed of official delegates from thirty denominations convened through the initiative of the National Federation of Churches and Christian Workers. This conference adopted the Constitution of the Federal Council and transmitted it to the various denominations with the understanding that approval by two thirds of them would give it full effect. This approval was secured early in 1908.

THE FEDERAL COUNCIL—AN ORGANIZED BODY

The difference between the Federal Council and the previous movements is that it is not an individual or voluntary agency, or simply an interdenominational fellowship, but is an officially and ecclesiastically constituted body.

It is differentiated from other general movements for the manifestation of Christian Unity in the fact that it is the cooperation of the various denominations for service rather than an attempt to unite them upon definitions of theology and polity.

It does not interfere with the autonomy of these bodies and its Constitution specifically states that "The Federal Council shall have no authority over the constituent bodies adhering to it; but its province shall be limited to the expression of its counsel and the recommending of a course of action in matters of common interest to the churches, local councils and individual Christians. It has no authority to draw up a common creed or form of government or of worship, or in any way to limit the full autonomy of the Christian bodies adhering to it."

The basis and limitations of its constituency are indicated by the preamble to the Constitution, which reads as follows: "In the providence of God, the time has come when it seems fitting more fully to manifest the essential oneness of the Christian Churches of America, in Jesus Christ as their Divine Lord and Saviour and to promote the spirit of fellowship, service and cooperation among them."

ORGANIZATION

The Federal Council meets quadrennially and consists of about four hundred qualified delegates officially elected by the various denominational assemblies or other constituted authorities.

Its Executive Committee consists of about ninety of these delegates and acts for the Council during the quadrennium between its sessions, holding regular annual meetings.

The Executive Committee has an Administrative Committee, holding regular monthly meetings which acts for the Executive Committee between its sessions.

The national office and its executives, under the Administrative Committee, carry on the continuous work of the Council.

THE NATURE OF ITS WORK

The united work undertaken by the Council is indicated by the titles of its Commissions. These Commissions are as follows: State and Local Federations, Foreign Missions, Home Missions, Christian Education, Social Service, Evangelism, Family Life, Sunday Observance, Temperance, Peace and Arbitration, Church and Country Life, and Federated Movements.

The Commission on the Church and Social Service has been, up to this time, the most effectively organized because its work seemed to offer a larger immediate field for common action. The Commissions on Peace and Arbitration, on Evangelism, on the Church and Country Life, and on Federated Movements also have offices and executive secretaries.

Other special Commissions, such as the Joint Commission on Theological Seminaries, on Interdenominational Movements and on International Relations, are appointed from time to time to take up special activities calling for action upon the part of the churches.

THE FUNCTIONS OF THE COUNCIL

One of the important results of the work during the first quadrennium was the development of a more intimate acquaintance and a better understanding between the great bodies in the Council through working together and through the larger view which each has gained of the other's work by means of this mutual relation. This bond of fellowship has constantly and rapidly become stronger. One of the chief tasks of the Council is that of educating the Churches in the interest of united action.

Its general functions require careful development, owing to the wide variety in ecclesiastical polity among its various constituent bodies. It is generally conceded, however, that it should represent and declare the common conscience of the Christian churches upon important questions with regard to which the common consciousness of Christianity is practically unanimous. This is best illustrated by its declarations on the problems of the social order and concerning the moral life of the nation. For example, upon such questions as international peace no concerted action can be taken except by such a comprehensive representative body as the Council.

One of its important functions is the constant creation on the part of the Churches of a state of mind which has deepened their sense of fellowship. This it accomplishes by bringing together upon every possible occasion its widely varying elements for consultation and common action. This is illustrated by such a movement as the coordination of the religious forces of the nation for work together during the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

The national office of the Council is creating a large body of literature calculated to increase and deepen the sense of fellowship and develop united action upon the part of the Churches and to set forth their common obligations.

STATE AND LOCAL FEDERATIONS

While the Federal Council is constituted solely of the national denominations, it has a cooperative relationship with state and local federations.

The weakness or effectiveness of local federations is determined for the most part by local situations and is largely dependent upon the community sense of unity and fraternity.

The national office by correspondence, literature and secretarial visitation, is continuously engaged in propagating this work. There are now twenty-one State Federations and about one hundred and thirty City and County Federations.

FINANCIAL SUPPORT

The national office sustains at the present time only one Secretary for its general work, but with the task of reaching so many forces the demand upon its clerical staff is of necessity large.

An Associate Secretary is located at Washington, D. C.

The various denominations are called upon for a small apportionment which, however, even if fully met, would cover less than half the expenses of the national office.

At its last quadrennial meeting in Chicago the Council instructed the treasurer to seek for the remaining amount from individual subscriptions, and from appropriations in the budgets of individual churches.

Correlation and unification unquestionably mean efficiency and economy. The work which the various denominations are brought to do in common costs very much less than it does when each denomination attempts it independently.

The subscriptions in the main are sought for the national office and the Washington office of the Council itself. The Commission on the Church and Social Service is maintained by a large number of sustaining memberships of small and moderate amounts. The Commission on the Church and Country Life is sustained by special contributions. The Peace and Arbitration Commission is maintained by a special gift for the purpose, and the Commission on Evangelism is responsible for the maintenance of its particular work.

The Executive Committee shall meet at the call of the Chairman, or in his absence or disability, the call of three of the members representing three of the constituent bodies, and ten days' notice of meeting shall be given. 14. These By-Laws may be amended at any regular meeting of the Council by a two thirds vote of the members present.

III. RULES OF ORDER

Adopted at Chicago, December 4-9, 1912

I. The President shall take the chair precisely at the hour at which the Council is appointed to meet, and shall immediately call the members to order, and on the appearance of a quorum shall open the session with prayer.

II. If a quorum be assembled at the time appointed, and the President be absent, a Vice-President shall take his place without delay, until a new election.

III. If a quorum be not assembled at the hour appointed, those present shall be competent to adjourn from time to time, that an opportunity may be given for a quorum to assemble.

IV. It shall be the duty of the President at all times to preserve order, and to endeavor to conduct all business before the Council to a speedy and proper result.

V. The President may speak to points of order, in preference to other members, rising from his seat for that purpose; and shall decide questions of order, subject to an appeal to the Council by any two members.

VI. The President shall appoint all Committees, except in those cases in which the Council shall decide otherwise.

VII. The person first named on any Committee shall be considered as the Chairman thereof, whose duty it shall be to convene the Committee; and in case of his absence or inability to act, the second named member shall take his place and perform his duties.

VIII. It shall be the duty of the Corresponding Secretary to place promptly a complete roll of the members present in the hands of the President, and whenever any additional members take their seats, to add their names, in their proper places, to the said roll.

IX. It shall be the duty of the Corresponding Secretary immediately to file all papers, in the order in which they have been read, with proper indorsements, and to keep them in perfect order. The Corresponding Secretary shall receive all memorials and miscellaneous papers addressed to the Council; shall make record of the same, and deliver them to the Business Committee for appropriate disposition or reference.

X. The Minutes of the last meeting of the Council shall be presented at the commencement of its session, and, if requisite, read and corrected.

XI. Business left unfinished at the last sitting is ordinarily to be taken up first.

XII. A motion made must be seconded, and afterwards repeated by the President, or read aloud, before it is debated; and every motion shall be reduced to writing, if the President or any member require it.

XIII. Any member who shall have made a motion shall have liberty to withdraw it, with the consent of his second, before any debate has taken place thereon; but not afterwards, without the leave of the Council.

XIV. If a motion under debate contain several parts, any two members may have it divided, and a question taken on each part.

XV. When various motions are made with respect to the filling of blanks, with particular numbers or times, the question shall always be first taken on the highest number and the longest time.

XVI. Motions to lay on the table, to take up business, to adjourn, and the call for the previous question shall be put without debate. On questions of order, postponement or commitment, no member shall speak more than once. On all other questions each member may speak twice, but not oftener, without express leave of the Council.

XVII. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received, unless to adjourn, to lay on the table, to postpone indefinitely, to postpone to a certain day, to commit or to amend; which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are herein arranged; and the motion for adjournment shall always be in order.

XVIII. An amendment, and also an amendment to an amendment, may be moved on any motion; but a motion to amend an amendment to an amendment shall not be in order. Action on amendments shall precede action on the original motion. A substitute shall be treated as an amendment. An amendment may be laid on the table without affecting another amendment or the original motion.

XIX. A motion to lay on the table shall be taken without debate; and, if carried in the affirmative, the effect shall be to place the subject on the docket, and it may be taken up and considered at any subsequent time.

XX. The previous question shall be put in this form, namely, Shall the main question be now put? It shall only be admitted when demanded by a majority of the members present; and the effect shall be to put an end to all debate and bring the body to a direct vote: First, on a motion to commit the subject under consideration (if such motion shall have been made); secondly, if the motion for commitment does not prevail, on pending amendments; and lastly, on the main question.

XXI. A question shall not be again called up or reconsidered at the same sessions of the Council at which it has been decided, unless by the consent of two thirds of the members who were present at the decision; and unless the motion to reconsider be made and seconded by persons who voted with the majority.

XXII. A subject which has been indefinitely postponed, either by the operation of the previous question or by a motion for indefinite postponement, shall not be again called up during the same sessions of the Council, unless by the consent of three fourths of the members who were present at the decision.

XXIII. Members ought not, without weighty reasons, to decline voting, as this practise might leave the decision of very interesting questions to a small proportion of the Council. Silent members, unless excused from voting, must be considered as acquiescing with the majority.

XXIV. When the President has commenced taking the vote, no further debate or remark shall be admitted, unless there has evidently been a mistake, in which case the mistake shall be rectified, and the President shall recommence taking the vote.

XXV. The yeas and nays on any question shall not be recorded, unless required by one third of the members present. If division is called for on any vote, it shall be by a rising vote without a count. If on such a rising vote the President is unable to decide, or a quorum rise to second a call for "tellers," then the vote shall be taken by rising, and the count made by tellers, who shall pass through the aisles and report to the President the number voting on each side.

XXVI. If more than one member rise to speak at the same time, the member who is most distant from the President's chair shall speak first. In the discussion of all matters where the sentiment of the house is divided, it is proper that the floor should be occupied alternately by those representing the different sides of the question.

XXVII. No speaker shall be interrupted, unless he be out of order, or for the purpose of correcting mistakes or misrepresentations.

XXVIII. If any member consider himself aggrieved by a decision of the President, it shall be his privilege to appeal to the Council, and the question on the appeal shall be taken without debate.

Church Social Service Organizations

THE FEDERAL COUNCIL COMMISSION ON THE CHURCH AND SOCIAL SERVICE

HISTORY AND ORGANIZATION

The Federal Council, including thirty-one evangelical denominations and communions as constituent bodies, operates in the interest of Social Service through the Commission on the Church and Social Service, appointed at the organization of the Council in Philadelphia, 1908. At Philadelphia the previous Committee on the Church and Modern Industry gave utterance to a message which was unanimously adopted by the Council, has become historic, has since been reaffirmed by practically all the leading church assemblies and received with gladness by social leaders and workers in all spheres of service.

The Commission on the Church and Social Service was thoroughly organized, and in the spring of 1911 the Rev. Charles S. Macfarland was elected as its Secretary, its offices being in association with those of the Federal Council.

Dr. Macfarland, now the General Secretary of the Federal Council, also serves as the Secretary of the Commission, in association with the denominational social service secretaries, all of whom are Associate Secretaries of the Federal Council Commission, forming what is known as the Secretarial Council.

The offices of the Commission contain a large Social Service Library, which adds all the latest books, has on file about two hundred social and industrial magazines and papers, and contains the literature pertaining to social work issued by all the movements, both religious and general.

Its most important work is that of correlating and coordinating the various denominational commissions and movements; and it has already gone a long way in bringing the denominational work into unity.

CONFERENCES

Its first Interdenominational Conference was held at Boston in June, 1911, and consisted of representatives of the evangelical denominations which were definitely organized in the interest of Social Service. This preliminary Conference requested that Secretaries Macfarland, Atkinson, Crouch, Stelzle, and Ward arrange for an Interdenominational Conference to which all the constituent bodies of the Federal Council should be invited to send delegates. In accordance with this action, at an Interdenominational Conference held at Chicago, November, 1911, seventeen denominations were represented by delegates elected or appointed by denominational action, and the agreement was that the various denominational committees and departments should cooperate through the Federal Council Commission.

A third Conference, with a large attendance representing nearly all the constituent denominations of the Federal Council, was held at Chicago in December, 1912.

SECRETARIAL FORCES

A Secretarial Council was recommended, to consist of the denominational secretaries of those Commissions having such executives, with the understanding that the Secretary of the Federal Council Commission should represent in the Council all the other denominations which did not have executive secretaries.

The Commission has voted that these secretaries be made Associate Secretaries of the Federal Council Commission, subject to the acceptance of the arrangement by the denominational organizations. These Associate Secretaries are as follows: Henry A. Atkinson, Secretary of the Congregational Commission on Social Service; Samuel Z. Batten, Secretary of the Baptist Department of Social Service and the Brotherhood; Frank M. Crouch, Executive Secretary of the Protestant Episcopal Joint Commission; Harry F. Ward, Secretary of the Methodist Federation for Social Service; Rev. Warren H. Wilson, of the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church; and Rev. Charles O. Gill, Secretary of the Federal Council Commission on the Church and Country Life. Through this Council the denominational agencies are working together, issuing their literature in common, dividing the work and cooperating at every possible point, both nationally and locally, and each Secretary, so far as it does not interfere with his denominational interests, is making his work interdenominational.

GENERAL PLAN OF WORK

The whole work of the Commission is proceeding in this way, conceiving its function to be that of bringing the denominational forces to work together, rather than considering itself as an independent body. Its "Plan of Work" has been approved and adopted by the Executive Committee of the Federal Council, the Interdenominational Social Service Conference at Chicago, the various denominational Commissions or Committees, and was also approved by the Federal Council in session at Chicago, December, 1912.

The Commission is made up of about 125 of the leading social workers of the nation, who represent distinctively the view-point of the churches, and some of the important items in its current program are as follows:

Close relationship is being established with the theological seminaries, the schools for training social workers, and other institutions of learning, in the particular interest of training men and women for a social service which will have the distinctively spiritual point of view.

The Commission is working in close relationship with all the national agencies for social reform, including the National Child Labor Committee, the Playground and Recreation Association, the American Association for Labor Legislation, and all other like organizations. It cooperates with the National Conference of Charities and Correction, the Southern Sociological Congress, and similar movements in conducting departments of the Church and Social Service.

Plans are arranged to cooperate with the Industrial and Social Service Departments of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association, and the newly created Industrial Department of the Young Women's Christian Association, and the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor and kindred societies, so that the work of these important agencies may be fully available for the use of the churches.

One of its most important movements is its nation-wide campaign for one-day-in-seven for industrial workers, which has been unanimously approved by the constituent bodies and also officially by the American Federation of Labor. Labor Sunday was appointed by the Federal Council at the suggestion of the Federation of Labor. The secretaries of the Commission are received as fraternal delegates at the annual sessions of the American Federation of Labor and also of the Women's Trade Union League.

The Commission also participated in many ways in the Men and Religion Forward Movement, and has assisted in the conservation work of its Social Service Committees.

The various Secretaries of the Council are developing social evangelism and civic revivals, and they are available for the services of Church Federations and other organizations in local communities for this purpose.

Several important investigations have been made, particularly of the industrial conditions in the steel industry at South Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, and the industrial warfare at Muscatine, Iowa. Secretary Henry A. Atkinson also prepared a report on the industrial situation in Michigan and Colorado, and a committee of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches prepared for the Commission a report on the situation at Lawrence, Massachusetts. At the present time a committee is making an investigation of the situation revealed at Paterson, New Jersey. A committee has also been instructed to report on prison conditions.

The literature of the Commission is assuming large proportions, and includes the reports of these investigations, study courses and bibliographies, social service catechisms, and similar material for the guidance and instruction of pastors and church classes, covering social questions and presenting them from the point of view of the obligation and opportunity of the churches. Arrangements are being made to secure the publication of handbooks jointly with other organizations issuing common publications, especially those issuing Home Mission, Industrial, and Social Service Handbooks like the Missionary Education Movement, and the Association Press. The Secretaries themselves contribute to the literature on Social Service, new books having recently appeared, by Secretaries Ward, Batten, Macfarland, Gill, and Wilson.

The churches are also working increasingly together in local communities. Most of the Federation of Churches are formed with community problems and social uplift as their objectives.

The conservation of the Men and Religion Forward Movement has largely been through the Social Service Committees.

In some cities. Social Service Secretaries have been engaged to give their whole time to the work of the federated churches.

The Commission on the Church and Social Service has the cooperation of other commissions and departments of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, including the Commission on the Church and Country Life, the Commission on Federated Movements, the Commission on State and Local Federations, the Commission on Peace and Arbitration, the Commission on Temperance, and the Commission on Christian Education, which has assisted in preparing social service material for study courses.

The Washington office of the Federal Council, in charge of Dr. H. K. Carroll, Associate Secretary, also serves the interest of the Commission, and through the work of Dr. Carroll in securing new chaplains for the navy an organization has been formed under the title of Religious Welfare League for the Army and Navy, the President of which is Chaplain Orville J. Nave, Los Angeles, California, and the Secretary, Dr. Carroll.

The Commission on the Church and Social Service also works in sympathetic relation with the Federal Council Commission on Evangelism, both of these commissions realizing that their work is a common one.

During the Panama-Pacific Exposition an exhibit was maintained by the Commission, and its work was also set forth by daily illustrated lectures in a hall connected with the exhibit under the direction of Mr. G. B. St. John.

Literature describing the work of the churches in association with the Federal Council may be obtained on application to the Rev. Charles S. Macfarland, Secretary, 612 United Charities Building, 105 East 22nd Street, New York.

COMMISSION ON PEACE AND ARBITRATION

To secure the active cooperation of the moving picture film companies, theater owners and their trade publications, in presenting Temperance information through special slides and photoplays.

To urge the universal observance of the annual "World's Temperance Sunday."

STATISTICS OF THE CHURCHES OF THE UNITED STATES FOR 1915

Gathered and Arranged by

H. K. CARROLL, LL.D.

These statistics cover the territory of the United States and its possessions exclusively. Ministers, churches, and communicants of various denominations in foreign countries are deducted from the denominational totals.

Where official denominational returns are to be had they are used. Where such returns are not available, the best denominational sources of information are sought for approximate figures. In some cases the census returns of 1906 are the latest and only ones available. It is chiefly the very small bodies which report no statistics.

Estimates, generally by denominational statisticians, are given in a few cases for the increase of the year, where denominational reports are not ready.

The order of arrangement follows the alphabet, and classification is according to name or to historical relation. The non-Christian bodies are few and easily separable from the Christian. A great body of Evangelical Churches, embracing seventeen and three-quarters million communicants, is found in the Table of the constituent bodies of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

It is necessary to give again a word of explanation concerning the figures for the Roman Catholic Church in the column of communicants. The "Official Catholic Directory" reports only "population," which includes with communicants the unconfirmed baptized; that is, children who have not been admitted to their first communion. [The rule adopted in the census of 1890, and followed in that of 1906, deducts 15 per cent from Catholic population and sets down the remaining 85 per cent as communicants. Representatives of that Church object to the process, but as the rule to report only members or communicants is applied to all other denominations, there is obviously no convenient way of making an exception in this case. It should be said that the figures for "population" in "The Official Catholic Directory" are, for a large number of dioceses and archdioceses, estimates, given in round numbers; as, for example, Baltimore, 261,000; Boston, 900,000; Cincinnati, 200,000.

The figures for Jewish members are misleading. The denomination furnishes no statistics, and nothing later than the figures gathered directly by circular from congregations by the Government in its census of 1906 is obtainable. The census gives an even smaller number of members than this table, counting only heads of families, according to the Jewish rule. The number of adults connected with Jewish congregations must be 700,000 or more.

The Christian Catholic Church (Dowie) has for years refused to give statistical information. So also have the Catholic Apostolic branches. The Church of Christ, Scientist, has furnished no returns for members since 1907.

Changes in the totals for 1914 have been made. In not a few cases the statistics officially given for that year proved to be incorrect and were revised a year later by the same denominational authorities. In other instances, estimates given in advance of regular returns needed to be slightly increased or decreased.

THE GAINS AND LOSSES FOR 1915

The total net gain of communicants for 1915 is 653,592, which is not nearly as large as that for 1914, the falling off amounting to more than 128,000. Part of this difference is due to a decrease among the Lutherans of nearly 11,000. The explanation of this considerable decrease where substantial gains have appeared hitherto is not at hand, but it is not unlikely due in part to faulty statistics. A decrease in Lutheran churches of nearly a thousand may be attributed largely to the same cause. There is reason to believe that the Disciples of Christ had a good year in 1915, but unfortunately they were not able to report any figures for the past year, up to January 22, and those of 1914 are used. The apparent loss of over 11,000 members and 150 churches by the Cumberland Presbyterians is probably to be accounted for by more accurate returns.

The fact that the grand total shows an actual loss, instead of the usual net gain, of more than a hundred and fifty churches is worthy of careful study. One large body, the Southern Baptists, reports neither gain nor loss of churches, and yet it had an increase of communicants of over 116,000. Probably the closing or the consolidation of rural churches is an important factor.

The increase of ministers, though less than half that of 1914, is by no means discouraging.

The advance of the Churches in the quarter century since 1890 should be accepted, it would appear, as distinctly encouraging. The total gains are as follows: 69,571 ministers, 60,037 churches, and 18,762,411 communicants, the gain in communicants being about 91 per cent.
